

Exhibition in Alaska

Contributed by Birgitte Krag Hansen
Friday, 08 May 2009

This month I am invited to exhibit on an exhibition in Fairbanks, Alaska. The exhibition is called: INTERNATIONAL POLAR YEAR EXHIBITION 2009.

The international polar year began March 2007 and was celebrated around the world in 60 countries with scientific research projects on global warming, polar bears, ice and the changes with arctic people, their families and activities. In Denmark there has also been many arrangements to celebrate the Polar Year. Alaska is now one of the last places to have an exhibition.

I participate on the exhibition with 3 animal reliefs: A polar bear, an eagle and a white mountain goat.